A. Internal Quality Assurance Cell

A.1 Preamble

Higher Educational Institutions, in pursuit of academic excellence and continual quality improvement, should establish and sustain an Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC). IQAC would be looked upon as the prime quality sustenance measure and is meant for the Assurance and Enhancement of activities related to Quality in the HEIs. It is imperative to establish IQAC in HEIs for Quality Enhancement, Accreditation and Ranking, Developing Stakeholder Confidence, Continuous Improvement, Promoting Innovation and Best Practices, Compliance with Regulations, and Research and Development. IQAC fosters a culture of quality consciousness, innovation, and continuous improvement in all facets of education and institutional functioning.

M.S. Ramaiah University of Applied Sciences offers Undergraduate, Postgraduate, and Doctoral Programmes from two campuses. MSRUAS is committed to creativity, innovation, and excellence in teaching and research. It values integrity and quality in all its endeavours. Through IQAC, MSRUAS aims to systematically channel its efforts towards promoting excellence, ensuring transparency and accountability, and harmonizing various initiatives to align with the highest standards of quality assurance in the University, eventually ensuring the definition of quality as (“No loss to Society”).

MSRUAS affirms its dedication to creating an environment that nurtures intellectual growth, promotes research, and cultivates a spirit of excellence among students, faculty, and staff, thereby contributing meaningfully to the development of a knowledge-driven society. IQAC serves as the driving force behind holistic development, ensuring that MSRUAS not only meets but also exceeds the expectations of quality in education, research, and service delivery. Contrary to QAC, whose functioning cut across from University leadership to the individual academic department, IQAC is predominantly at the monitoring level under the direct oversight of Vice Chancellor.
